Actor Bio:

Habitually early for shoots, interviews and auditions, scandal free actor Geoffrey Gould feels it's better to be an hour early than a minute late. An east coast transplant, Geoffrey grew up on the stage in northern NJ; since moving to California much of his principal work has been commercials (including but not limited to the voted high-ranking 2009 Pedigree Superbowl spot as an ostrich-chased mailman), and scores of student films, and a Day Player gig for "The Practice" where he worked opposite Sharon Stone.

Geoffrey worked every performance of the highly well-received Darren Lynn Bousman immersive theater "The Tension Experience: Ascension" production.

Geoffrey solo-voiced the 2015 Slamdance Jury Award-winning Best Animated film "The Pride of Strathmoor."

Geoffrey played Patrick, an integral supporting role in Brandon Scullion's horror film "Consumption" (now on DVD), Geoffrey played the lead in the dark fantasy 2017 feature "Everything." Geoffrey feels the story is the star, and takes direction so that the director and producers' vision is what's on the screen.

Geoffrey is also a comedy writer, his well-received sketch-like short film scripts workshopped with WeMakeMovies.org group.
