Actor Bio:

Jean Rasey attended the prestigious American Conservatory Theatre of San Francisco under scholarship for three years. She appeared in the theatrical production "Cyrano de Bergerac" starring Marc Singer, Marsha Mason and Peter Donat.

Upon moving to Los Angeles, California she was hand picked to play the ingenue role of Irene Breslaus, by Legendary Director Robert Wise, in the 1975 motion picture "The Hindenburg". That was the film that launched her acting career. Jean then starred with Pamela Sue Martin in the ABC Television series Nancy Drew Mysteries as the beloved character George Fayne, Ms. Rasey has always loved the theatre and had the wonderful opportunity to understudy Stockard Channing in the role of Rosilind in Tony Richardson's theatrical production of Shakespeare's "As You Like It" at the Long Beach Arena Theatre. Commercially Jean has starred in nearly 100 National Commercials, including starring as "Jill" the spokesperson for the long running National Television Campaign for Union 76. From 1975 to the present, she has starred and guest starred in various other television show's, motion pictures, commercials and theatrical productions throughout her professional career.
