  - The concept, message or basic idea has been changed;

What's new in the 2019 Audio Contract?

A flexible alternative compensation model features increased session rates and extremely simplified use fees. With a session fee of $350, the use payments in the new flexible model are determined by three simple factors:

- Will the spot be aired: Nationally, Regionally, or by City/Market?
  - Will it air on Terrestrial or Digital?
  - How long the spot will be aired: 4-week, 8-week, 13-week, 6-months, 1-year? Please see the Summary of New Provisions and accompanied chart for detailed usage rates.
What about the main Commercials Contracts? Do the Upfront Use Packages replace them?
No. This alternative compensation model is an addition to our Commercials Contract, not a replacement for it. Producers now have two avenues to choose from. Once they pick a lane, they are required to stay in that lane for the entire MPU (maximum period of use). Together, the combination of both models make it possible for SAG-AFTRA to be more competitive by offering unique payment structures to meet the needs of an evolving advertising industry.

If approved, when will the new changes go into effect?
Upon ratification by the membership, these new agreements will become effective April 1, 2019, and will remain in force through March 31, 2022. The new contracts will include increases in minimum rates retroactive to April 1, 2019, and payable within 30 days of ratification. The new Upfront Use Packages will be available on June 1, 2019.

Why do we need a new type of payment structure?
Together, the combination of both models make it possible for SAG-AFTRA to be more competitive in the new age of digital advertising by offering different payment structures to meet the needs of an evolving advertising industry.

Why is it important to streamline the renegotiation process?
For many years, agents have been responsible for sending out letters of intent to renegotiate when a commercial's MPU (maximum period of use) is set to expire. This is administratively burdensome and sometimes leads to a situation where the signatory cannot locate the renegotiation letter and the commercial is rolled into the new MPU at the old scale rate. This new process puts the responsibility for renegotiation on the signatory, which will also prove beneficial to those members without agents. For work produced under the 2019 Commercials Contracts, the signatory will reach out to the performer/performer's representative to negotiate for a subsequent MPU.

Why should I vote YES for the 2019 Commercials Contracts ratification?
The 2019 Commercials Contracts are landmark agreements for a new era, introducing innovative and flexible alternative compensation models that specifically address the realities of the modern advertising business while preserving and enhancing opportunities for actors to maintain a professional career. Here are some highlights:
